HOW THIS TRANSCRIPT WAS PREPARED

Machine-transcribed from the audio and then checked against the recording. The words are the speakers' own, including the hesitations and the broken grammar of a conversation held in a second language. Nothing has been tidied into better English, because the way a person actually says something is part of what we are looking at.

- The transcription service's promotional lines have been removed.
- One expletive from the interviewer has been removed. No other word was changed.
- The document is titled by participant code. The original file name carried the messaging app, the date and the minute the recording was made.
- No names, contact details or locations appear anywhere in the recording, so none needed removing.

INTERVIEWER 0:00 – 1:02

Good evening, thanks for taking the time with me. I'm a student in social mobile computer at UQ and my team is looking at what actually happens at the gig before the music starts. So most of what I ask is about your own experience rather than about the technology.

So there's obviously no right or wrong answers and if a question does not apply to you, just say so and we will move on. So in this interview I would like to record a video so I'm not writing while you talk and the recording set only stays inside the team and we take your name and anything I identify out of it and only normalize codes going to your coursework. So you can ask me to stop recording, skip any question or stop at any point and nothing happens if you do so is that all right?

So did you accept to have you for me to start recording now?

PARTICIPANT 1:04 – 1:05

Yeah that's okay.

INTERVIEWER 1:06 – 1:17

Yeah sure, perfect. So I'll start with the question one. So it's a general question about when you go to a concert alone, what do you usually do before the show starts?

PARTICIPANT 1:19 – 1:40

So before the show starts, when I go there to show alone, I usually text with my parents or with my close friends before the show starts and have a chat with them and tell them when I will be finished and make my parents make sure about the time they can pick me up to home.

INTERVIEWER 1:41 – 1:59

Great. So let's get you back in a specific scenario about the... Can you tell me about a time when you want to talk to someone at a concert but didn't?

So if you can memorize that, so what stopped you at that moment?

PARTICIPANT 2:01 – 2:50

So I'd like to talk about one experience like once before the show, there was a girl sitting next to me and we have the same fan. We are the same fan about the same celebrities. We are really like it and I thought they have something look like really beautiful about this celebrities.

So I wanted to ask her about the pressure link and however the show started soon after and the venue turned completely dark but when it is end, it is really crowded and a lot of people they are getting out. So I lost the sight of her so I never got a chance to ask about the things.

INTERVIEWER 2:52 – 3:03

Hmm, that's a pretty useful story. Well, how do you usually tell whether someone at a concert is open to talking or prefers to be left alone?

PARTICIPANT 3:05 – 3:33

I think maybe in my experience, people who want to chat with contact with you and you can see the scenes and that they want to talk with you or start up a conversation by contact who don't want to talk with you. Maybe they just involve themselves into their own scenes or just talking with different close to him.

INTERVIEWER 3:36 – 3:44

Well, it's a kind of personal question for the next one. So what memorable activities did you do at a concert?

PARTICIPANT 3:47 – 4:44

So I did the scene I think it is really unforgettable. It's about once I helped a person with this ability and get to his seat and this experience left a deep impression on me because there was a large concert and a lot of people in there and pushing really crowded and some people they can't see someone in a wheelchair. So it is really uncomfortable for him and I can see he because he can't control about his wheelchair at that moment and he can't control about the movement about himself and many people fail to notice him and keep just pushing each other and I get him to his seat and he really thanks to me sincerely.

INTERVIEWER 4:46 – 6:45

Yeah, well, let's go to a because our team has two different directions and made by me and another team member. So I my core part of the interview is just like, we're gonna do some basic usability test, but not exactly the usability because we only do the prototype. So it's not a running functional solution.

So let's talk about the direction A. So it's about a crew pact. I already sent the prototype to you before and it I'll also summarize that core concept to you right now.

So it seems like so use it use that before your group leaves the house. So you got to agree how the night goes including where you meet when and what happens if somebody is late. So this agreement is going to be written ahead onto everyone's phone the door and in the group.

So it still works when there's no signal inside. So once you are in the venue it's going to be nobody shares the location instead of you send a short state something like at the bar or head into the midpoint and only when you chose to and everything disappears when the show starts. So I believe you already have a look through my prototype and the design concept and the different screens shows that with the core user flow and another user story.

So after you're looking through the prototype can you please briefly describe what do you and your friends actually do now to work out or where we will meet again at a concert.

PARTICIPANT 6:47 – 7:15

So maybe in a concert we usually met each other before heading to the concert venue. So we won't easily get surprised get separated once inside. If we can only meet on site maybe we will pick some sports and a noticeable landmark and tell each other about what the color color clothes we are wearing in advance making it easy to find one another.

INTERVIEWER 7:21 – 7:46

Well one of one of my core functionality is it has the it has something like agreeing the whole night before you leave sound like sending something your group would sit down and do. Does it true or does it sound like just actual where you and you never do that in the future.

PARTICIPANT 7:48 – 8:05

Maybe we can't seldom to arrange things in person and most of time we will create a group chat and to confirm the meeting time the meeting place and also the other relevant details in the chatting group.

INTERVIEWER 8:10 – 8:42

Yeah well I also find out in my working in my prototype language especially for the status it's going to be send a short stay like at the bar instead of the your location. So I know it it might be bring the user some confusion about that. So is that enough for you to find each other or you're going to end up asking like where are they anyway like adding more questions included to it.

PARTICIPANT 8:43 – 9:10

It depends on the different locations. Maybe sometimes we are able to locate each other because we have agreed about the color of our clothes for head and but if the crowd if the crowd is too huge or it is not easy to find each other we might to send each other short videos showing our surroundings after confirming our positions we will go to meta.

INTERVIEWER 9:13 – 10:06

Pretty interesting. I'll write it on my notes. So one last question about the crew pack direction.

So as you can see that the plan is going to be safe to your phone at the door. So it's also going to work without a signal even with the hardware and the software. But it also means that it cannot change once you are inside.

So after you go inside the concert it's going to be offline. So you cannot change anyway. So I got an interesting question.

Where where the scenario would that break for you. So what at when at what time you think it's going to be. Oh no I got the offline function is it's useless.

PARTICIPANT 10:08 – 11:03

So maybe this question for me. I think it is really good to have an app that we can confirm or make a deal about the position we will make each other under the signal circumstance. But sometimes when because in some concert maybe we haven't went there before.

So we don't know what the position about or what it looks like inside. So it is not really good to have some agreement or some decision which location we will make before we go inside. And also some spots maybe they are really crowded.

It is not easy to find each other. So maybe in this situation I would think it is not work. I need to talk with my friends online.

INTERVIEWER 11:05 – 12:31

Well that's all for the direction A. So as for the direction B it means that it's going to be totally different than my idea like my prototype. It's going to be something like pre-show missions.

So the other direction which means that the venue will run something during the hour before the show that anyone inside can join. So which including a share screen and showing a countdown to the artist and what's going on right now. And there are also small missions you can take part in just like a gaming structure which I pretty love that.

And for example like scanning a code somewhere in the venue or answering something from the artist or finishing a challenge with the people around you. It seems like it will also have the leaderboard but we're gonna decide that later. So missions can also earn points and what everyone has done will show up in the venue also in the app.

So I believe that you also have a look through about the images I sent to you for the prototype for pre-show missions. So opening question. So what's your first reaction to that?

PARTICIPANT 12:34 – 12:58

My first reaction would be it sounds really fun and interesting and if I have the energy I love taking part in this kind of activity as it can greatly enhance my overall impression and the whole experience about the concert. I would probably feel so excited and even make many new friends along this way.

INTERVIEWER 13:00 – 13:15

So you said that it's pretty fun for you. Okay so would you actually take part in one of these missions I told you before in the venue or just stand by and watch other people to do them?

PARTICIPANT 13:16 – 13:32

I think it depends on the different kinds of the tasks about what you need to do. So if I have enough time or I feel so interesting I would like to take part in that.

INTERVIEWER 13:35 – 13:42

Okay so does it change anything if the mission needs you to do it with someone you did not come with?

PARTICIPANT 13:45 – 14:11

So I might feel so awkward at first because I am a shy person. I don't want to have more communication with other strangers. However if the other person is really easy going and I will fit in quickly and naturally if I would be happier and probably if I have a chance to did it with my friends.

INTERVIEWER 14:11 – 14:37

Exactly. So there's another scenario about the previous question I asked you about is something like you're gonna attend a concert with others your friends or strangers but if you come on your own would this still useful or make your weight better or would just being your own more obvious during the issue?

PARTICIPANT 14:40 – 15:04

I think maybe if I come there alone I don't want to take part in these things because actually I think it is not comfortable for me to do something with another stranger. If I have a friend maybe we will encourage each other to take part in this activity but if I come there alone I don't want to take part in that.

INTERVIEWER 15:04 – 15:58

Yeah pretty honest answer I love that pretty love that. So one last question so I already showed you the direction A and direction B so you can see that it's totally different approaches and also for their purposes are totally different and also the functions so if only one of these gonna exist at next concert you're gonna go to so which one would you actually open and give me the reason so this question you can just say if you don't cannot decide that yet you can just say which I love the both or I dislike the both so if you cannot choose either at that time it's also fine but I just if you can tell me your pretty honest answer that's gonna be super great.

PARTICIPANT 16:00 – 16:57

So if you want me to pick one I will choose the first one because I think maybe it is really useful than the other one and for the second one I think maybe concert would be quite entertaining it will cost me a lot of power and energy to standing up or sing with the celebrities so it will be really tired if I need to join too many extra activities maybe I might feel really tired and sleepy later on maybe at the end of the concert and I would not be able to fully evolve myself into this show and but if I have I think maybe it's if just provide some small events and I think it will be really fun so I prefer the first one it's really useful.

INTERVIEWER 16:59 – 17:40

Okay so that's the everything I want to ask you today if you if something comes back to you later you can just message me and whenever the time and I will add it to the notes so if you also want to know some where the project is going to be approached and I'm also happy to send you a short summary of what we end up building like at the end so I really appreciate that you stay the time with me and this interview is pretty useful and I I'll write down all of the summaries for improving our research and I appreciate that so I'll stop recording.
